

Case: 41 y.o. male with red, sore, and itchy eyelids

The Person & Complaint

A 41-year-old man presented with red, sore, and itchy eyelids. The problem had been developing for about six weeks and was quite irritating. The problem was a narrow (5 mm) raised rash across each eyelid, between GB 1 and BI 1. The eyelids seemed to be worse when he was working, and they would calm down after he had a few days off.

The client has been successfully treated for Gallbladder headaches in the past.

The Story & Emotions

The client has a demanding job with long hours of intense concentration. He is very concerned with doing a good job, and he can drive himself really hard. When he's working, it's like there is nothing else in the world, and he doesn't feel he can do the job in any other way.

The Energetic System

- GB organ congested
- GB channel blocked across eyelid

Treatment – first session

- GB 14's – very hot and prickly for the whole session. Got a tiny bit of movement, but mostly just pressure in the channel.

Treatment – second session

Result from previous session:

- Eyelids are less itchy, but still red and raised

Treatment:

- Resonance to GB organ – sluggish and sore at start. Then got it to open well (client had previously had a couple of sessions on GB organ for GB headaches) within 20 mins.
- GB 14's – still hot and prickly at the start, but then got movement and opening. May need more.

Treatment – third session

Result from previous session:

- Minimal redness and itchiness on eyelids

Treatment:

- Resonance to GB organ – felt quite good.
- Resonance GB 1 to GB 14 on each eye – got synchronised and open movement
- GB 1 to BI 1 on each eye – felt a connection between them and good movement

How it was resolved

Client had not had any itchy or sore eyes since his treatments (4 months post-treatment at the time this was written).
